Transformational Leadership

INTENSIVE INTERDISCIPLINARY TRAINING COURSE
 april 2023 | 6 days | FSS 4007

The Leadership Academy at the University of Ottawa will be giving its 3rd annual offering of an intensive six-day interdisciplinary leadership training course to faculty and administrative staff, as well as alumni and members of the public.

[This training will be offered in English]

This model, centered on leadership as a way of being, encourages participants to create futures that lead to action. In the spirit of collegiality and interdisciplinarity, we will explore an inclusive and comprehensive vision of leadership that emphasizes producing lasting transformations for individuals, teams and organizations.

The takeaways

Access to a new approach to leadership

- as a way of being and acting (and not as a product of charisma, characteristics, title, or authority);

Significant breakthroughs in one's professional

- and personal lives – in any environment, under any circumstances;

Identification of ways of being that

- are interfering with the possibility of exercising leadership effectively;

Support in developing or creating

- one's own leadership project;

Reconnection with one's power to make

- things happen, and with the source of aliveness that generates the desire to make noteworthy contributions to others;

Discovery of how to deal with personal

- or organizational inertia and lack of motivation in teams; working in a way that speaks to every member of a team;

Reframing of one's roles

- (researcher, professor, support staff, parent, public servant, etc.) as opportunities for self-expression and contribution to something bigger than oneself.
