Primary Preceptor: Dr. Hanif Charania

Welcome to the community stream for the Department of Family Medicine for the University of Ottawa. The Nepean Family Medicine Associates clinic is a diverse suburban practice located in Barrhaven, in the Southwest part of our city. We offer full service primary care for newborn to elderly patients, shared care obstetrics, plenty of minor office procedures and regular weekly shifts in the after hours on call clinic while on block time. There are occasional house calls as required. There is a monthly academic journal club for the group as well.

The office is fully equipped with an electronic medical record (EMR) system and audiovisual equipment for direct resident observation. Dr. H. Charania, who is the primary preceptor with extensive experience in both office and the ER, works with a more senior practice but also serves a broad based population. There are four additional physicians that the resident may work with to gain additional exposure. Dr. S. Charania (more women and pediatrics) and Dr. H. Prasad (balanced practice) each work regularly with the resident in the office (1 full day each per week on block time) to ensure adequate variety and diversity of patients and problems.

Patient Population: Varied population of all ages, mainly from Barrhaven and the surrounding area of Ottawa

Special Interests: Broad based suburban community care

Type of trainees in-clinic: Residents, occasionally medical students

Number of Physicians: 5

Specialty Procedures: All minor procedures including lumps and bumps, cryotherapy, joint injections, skin biopsy, IUD insertion etc., done on site. Our office works with caring allied staff including an on site nurse. We are part of a positive, enthusiastic and pleasant work environment that has had the privilege of working with Family Medicine Residents for many years.
