The Saint-Joseph Family Medicine Clinic is a diverse suburban group practice in Orléans, a community on the eastern edge of Ottawa. We offer full-service care from newborn to elderly, plenty of procedures, and an after hours on-call clinic while on block time. Dr. Seale, the primary preceptor, has 17 years' experience as an emergency physician, although no longer practicing in the emergency department. We also provide the occasional house calls as needed, particularly for palliative care patients, and some colleagues have significant experience with maternal and baby care, performing low risk obstetrics. A number of our group do hospitalist work, and some also work in long-term care facilities. We are equipped with an electronic medical record. All physicians in the practice contribute to a positive learning and working environment.

We have opportunities for francophone residents, although you do not need to speak French to practice at this site.
